

The Centre for Comparative and Public Law Faculty of Law, The University of Hong Kong

Seminar

Apprehended Bias and the Reasonable Observer - How Do Courts Decide Claims of Bias?

Dr Matthew Groves

*Senior Lecturer, Faculty of Law
Monash University*

Thursday, 15 January 2009

1:00 - 2:00 pm

Room 303, 3/F KK Leung Building, University of Hong Kong

The paper will provide a comparative analysis of the tests governing claims of bias in judicial and administrative decision-making.

Dr Matthew Groves teaches in the Faculty of Law, Monash University, Australia. His main research interest is administrative law and parliamentary privilege. Matthew is co-author of the leading Australian work on administrative law - Judicial Review of Administrative Action (3rd ed 2004, 4th ed 2009). He has also edited several books and published many articles on public law. He is also part of a major project, funded by the Australian Research Council, on governance in India from 1,000-2000 AD. Prior to appointment, Matthew was Legal Adviser to the Chairman of the Victorian Bar and Clerk to the Executive Council of Victoria.

ALL ARE WELCOME!

Please register on-line via www.hku.hk/ccpl/ or email Flora Leung at fkleung@hku.hk if you would like to attend.