Goals of the Centre for Comparative and Public Law

The Centre for Comparative and Public Law (CCPL) was established in 1995 as a virtual centre within the Faculty of Law. Its goals are (1) to advance knowledge on public law and human rights issues primarily from the perspective of international and comparative law and practice; (2) to encourage and facilitate collaborative work within the Faculty, the University, and the broader Hong Kong community in the fields of comparative and public law; and (3) to make the law more accessible to the community and more effective as an agent of social change.

This report covers the period from 1 July 2011 to 30 July 2013. CCPL once again organised a significant number of events during this two-year period, including: 12 major conferences, and 52 seminars, dialogues and panel discussions, 18 Rights Talks, four training workshops and one film screening. The Young Researcher Scheme and Refugee Legal Assistance Clinic continue to attract much student interest and participation. CCPL received funding and awards from HKU's Knowledge Exchange Office and the Gallant Ho Experiential Learning

Centre. CCPL also housed and supported a variety of research projects and produced several new publications. These will be detailed in the Appendices to this report.

Personnel

Core Staff

Professor Simon N.M. Young has been Director of CCPL since July 2007, taking over from Professor Fu Hualing who is served as Head of the Department of Law from 2008 to 2011. Professor Young stepped down in his role as Director in July 2013.

Associate Professors Puja Kapai and Benny Tai, and Assistant Professor Kelley Loper served as the Deputy Directors for the academic years 2011-2013. CCPL welcomed Professor Kapai as its new Director in July 2013.

Sharron Fast has worked as Research Officer for the Centre since April 2009. She is responsible for research and administrative support for the Centre's events and projects.

Flora Leung is the joint Executive Secretary for CCPL and the Asian Institute of International Financial Law (AIIFL). She manages the registration and publicity for CCPL conferences and seminars and many other administrative matters.

Senior Researchers and Research Assistants

Senior Research Assistant Patricia Alva (part-time) worked on the ICAC project and the CMAB's Stalking project.

Student Research Assistant Geoffrey Yeung worked on the ICAC project and the Stalking project .

For more information on these projects see Appendix 1, beginning on page 40.

Fellows

Fellows are full-time academic members of HKU who take an active interest in the work and activities of CCPL. For a complete list of Fellows, see Appendix 2. CCPL has one Honorary Fellow, who is Ms. Anna Wu, a member of the Executive Council.

Visiting Fellows

Visiting Fellows are external academics who visit the Centre and conduct research here, deliver lectures, or participate in other significant ways.

2013

Simon Hooey Lee is the Director of Hong Kong & Macao Centre for Strategic Research Institute at China Resources Ltd. His research interests include Hong Kong Basic Law, Chinese legal system and constitutional law. Dr. Lee is a consultant to the Harvard Law School (Program on International Financial Systems). During his fellowship at the Centre, from May 2013 through May 2014, he intends to further his research on the Hong Kong Basic Law.

Walter Lee visited the Centre from January through June 2013. During his stay, he focussed on researching and writing Chapter III and Chapter IV of his doctoral thesis, titled 'The PRC's Doctrine of Non-interventionism Assessed in Comparison with Classical Chinese Conceptions of Jus ad Bellum.' Walter is a PhD Candidate at the University of Auckland.

Alison Duxbury visited the Centre during the months of March and April 2013. She spent her fellowship conducting research on the impact of human rights on judicial review. Alison is an Associate Professor at Melbourne Law School and an Associate Director of the Asia Pacific Centre for Military Law.

2012

Dr. Stefan Gruber visited the Centre in October / November 2012. He is a lecturer at Sydney Law School and is currently working on a book on cultural heritage law and policy in China. During his fellowship, he presented a seminar on illicit trafficking in Chinese antiquities.

Barry Weisberg visited the Centre from August through December 2012. Barry is an activist, lecturer and teacher from the United States and is considered one of the world's leading authorities on global violence and peace building. He developed his research in this area while based in the Centre.

Professor Norbert Varga visited the Centre in August/September 2012. His research topic was the development of citizenship law in the British Empire in the early colonial era, with special attention to the status of citizens of Hong Kong in the 19th century. During his stay, he hosted a seminar on International Treaties and Citizenship Law in the 19th Century.

PY Lo joined the Centre as a Visiting Fellow in March 2012. During the tenure as Visiting Fellow of the Centre, Dr Lo conducted research on the courts and judicial system of the HKSAR in their context for the purpose of preparing the "country report" on the courts of the HKSAR for the book project on Asian Courts in Context: A Comparative Study, organized by a collaborative research group at the College of Law, National Taiwan University. As the investigation progresses, Dr Lo will report his findings in seminar(s) to be organized by the Centre.

Holning Lau spent his fellowship in January 2012 focussing on his collaboration with CCPL Deputy Director and Director of the LLM in Human Rights Programme Kelley Loper, which investigated the significance of marital status to legal rights and responsibilities in Hong Kong.

2011

David Pimentel joined the Centre as a Visiting Fellow in December 2011. He conducted research and a workshop on post-conflict judicial reform and the concomitant exploration of comparative judicial systems. The research laid foundation for future research on judicial reform in developing and post-conflict Asia.

Bryane Michael visited the Centre from September 2011 through February 2012. His research focussed on the investigation and prosecution of corruption inside the PRC. In 2012, Bryane worked with the Centre as a Senior Research Assistant, on a project related to local and international corruption laws.

Kevin Ladouceur conducted a comparative study of the legal uncertainty of the rules of conflict of laws in the French, American and Chinese legal systems during his fellowship, which ran from March 2012 through June 2012.

Henry Lin, a senior prosecutor with the Taichung District Prosecutors Office, was appointed as a CCPL Visiting Fellow from January through April 2012. Henry was part of the team of prosecutors in Taiwan which drafted the agreement between Taiwan and China on “Cross-Strait Joint Crime-Combating Cooperation and Mutual Legal Assistance”. His research at the Centre, which he presented at a seminar, focussed on the Hong Kong approach to mutual legal assistance.

Ben Bridge was appointed as a CCPL Visiting Fellow from September 2011 through February 2012. Ben pursued two research areas during his fellowship: an investigation of the relationship between parliamentary privilege and trust in Parliament; and the boundaries of non-statutory executive powers. He gave a well-received seminar on parliamentary privilege during his stay.

Student Visiting Fellows

Student Visiting Fellows are HKU and visiting postgraduate and undergraduate students who undertake research and play a role in the Centre.

Dana Harada, of the University of Hawaii (2013) worked on the Designing Democracy project while on externship after her first year of her JD studies.

Summer Interns

Summer Interns are HKU and visiting postgraduate, undergraduate and secondary students who undertake assist the Centre on specific projects for one to two months during summer break. CCPL welcomed its first interns in the summer of 2012. Details of our past interns are as follows:

MaryAnn Wei , of McGill University (2012) worked on the Design Democracy project .
Lauren Ng , of Singapore International School (2012) worked on the CCPL Facebook page .
Emma Ng , of the German Swiss International School (2012) worked on the CCPL Facebook page .
John Leung , of University College London (2013) performed research on the rule of law in Hong Kong.

Young Researchers Scheme

The Young Researchers Scheme was launched in 2007 for law students interested in international, comparative and public law issues. Students are appointed as student researchers and have the opportunity to work closely with Faculty members on various research projects. Seven CCPL Young Researchers assisted with research projects housed in the Centre during the summers of 2012 and 2013.

The young researchers in 2012 were Harry Cai Jianbin, Chris Chan Pui Ki, Churk Shue Sing, Ruby Lo Laam Ho, Severina E. Melissa Loja, Frank To Yu Wai, Samuel Wong Lok Him, Jolly Xu Jingying, Daniel Yip Wai Hon, Kenneth Yuen Yip Kan, and John Zhou Hang.

In 2013 Jonathan Lai, Sofia Nordengren, Jeff Chan, Christopher Fung, Calvin Ng, Andrew Tong and Daniel Yip were appointed as Young Researchers on the scheme.

In addition to the people listed above, several members of the Board of Management and the Faculty of Law have assisted with particular events or projects associated with CCPL. Their contributions are noted in the relevant sections of this report.

Public Conferences

Most of CCPL's events are open to the general public and free of charge, although participants who wish to obtain continuing professional development credit must pay a small fee to cover the additional administrative cost. Participants at CCPL events come from HKU, other local and overseas universities, the government, NGOs, and include practitioners and other interested members of the community.

27 April Forum on Sexual Orientation Anti-Discrimination Law

This seminar was jointly organised by CCPL and the Diversity Initiative. Four panels, comprised of individuals representing business, religious, European and International Standards and the Hong Kong experience discussed the impact and desirability of anti-discrimination laws to protect individuals from discrimination based on sexual orientation.

10 – 13 October      Power and Dynamics of Civil Resistance

The Power and Dynamics of Civil Resistance educational seminar was led by academic advisors and staff of the International Centre on Nonviolent Conflict. Over a four-day programme, participants were provided an in-depth and multi-disciplinary perspective on civilian-based movements and campaigns defending basic rights and justice around the world with the use of non-violent tactics and strategies.

17 September      ONC Conference on Law Reform

With the generous support of ONC Lawyers and sponsorship by LexisNexis, CCPL hosted the 2011 ONC Conference on Law Reform. The event attracted numerous prominent local and international jurists, and lively discussions of the key issues and stumbling blocks to achieving law reform in Hong Kong were had between panellists and audience members. The papers from the conference will be published in an edited collection entitled Reforming Law Reform: Perspectives on Law Reform Processes in Hong Kong and Beyond, by Hong Kong University Press around the end of 2013. The opening address for the conference was delivered by the presiding Hong Kong Secretary for Justice, Wong Yan-lung, SC.

Rights Talks

In addition to the formal events described above, CCPL organised 18 informal Rights Talks in the past two years. These talks were delivered by a wide range of experts on human rights issues, including lawyers and activists from Hong Kong and other jurisdictions. While these informal gatherings were open to all, they are particularly aimed at students in the LLM Human Rights programme. The talks provided added depth to the curriculum and gave students an opportunity to see how theories of human rights can be applied in practice, both in Hong Kong and in the international community.

Training Workshops

8 June Commit to Act, Commit to Change: Walk the Mile with Survivors of Sexual Abuse

This workshop brought together experts from multiple stakeholder groups to examine the realities and challenges of prevention, protection and punishment of sexual offences in a range of contexts, including schools, the workplace, and homes. The programme was designed and led by current CCPL Director Puja Kapai.

11-15 December Advanced Leadership Enhancement Programme

This training workshop for Directorate Officers of the Hong Kong Government Civil Service Bureau is a structured advanced leadership development programme which aimed to enhance directorate civil servants' core leadership competence, to empower them to think forward with imagination, to engage stakeholders with tact and results, and to gather more insight into effective governance and management. The programme consisted of two 4-day modules, namely "Module I - Policy and Governance" and "Module II - Leadership & Public Service Delivery" respectively. Deputy Director Benny Tai served as Consultant on the Programme, a role which involved content design and delivery.

21 May

Workshop on Research Training

CCPL Fellow Professor Karen Kong designed and conducted this training session for the Legislative Council Secretariat, designed to enrich participants' knowledge in research sources, methodologies, strategies and findings presentation. The Workshop was attended by 76 participants, including 46 Secretariat staff members and 32 Members' Assistants.

2011

11-15 December Advanced Leadership Enhancement Programme

Under the leadership of Deputy Director Benny Tai, CCPL hosted the Advanced Leadership

Enhancement Programme for Directorate Officers of the Hong Kong Government Civil Services for the second year running in 2011. For details on the structure of the programme, please see the descriptor in the list of 2012 Workshops, above.

Refugee Legal Assistance Clinic

In January 2010, CCPL launched its first credit-bearing clinical legal education scheme, in conjunction with the Hong Kong Refugee Advice Centre. The HKU-HKRAC Clinical Legal Education Programme is offered to undergraduate and post-graduate students in the Faculty of Law and allows students the opportunity to learn both the theory and practice of domestic and international refugee law under the direct supervision of the HKRAC's Head of Clinical Programs. Students attend a two-day intensive training weekend, observe and perform client registration and intake interviews, write client testimonies, undertake country of origin research and submit a legal brief. The initiative provides unique opportunities for law students to gain practical legal skills by experiencing the law in action outside the classroom. The students' work has also had significant impact. In the Spring 2010 intake, all of the clients assisted by the eight registered students were granted refugee status!

Other Events and Activities*2012 & 2013*May/June Western Chinese Scholars Programme

CCPL, in conjunction with the Norwegian Human Rights Centre organises an annual visit for scholars from Western China who were former participants in a 2-week workshop on international human rights law in Norway. The programme gave the scholars a chance to share their research-in-progress, obtain feedback from faculty and foster academic/research networks. Activities included attendance at CCPL seminars and conferences and individual research meetings with scholars engaged in related research.

Knowledge Exchange with the CommunityHuman Rights Portal www.law.hku.hk/hrportal

With funding assistance from an award by the Knowledge Exchange Office of the University of Hong Kong, the aim of this project is to launch a comprehensive, accessible and user-friendly website which collates human rights materials produced by CCPL, members of the HKU Faculty of Law, international human rights bodies, international and regional NGOs, governments, law-making bodies, public policy officials, academics and students. The website was officially launched on 15 October, 2012 and to date has had over 3,000 visitors from across 72 jurisdictions. The Portal's Facebook page currently has 241 'Likes'. The Human Rights Portal was awarded the HKU Faculty Knowledge Exchange Award for 2013.

Research Grants and Projects Housed in CCPL

A table of current and completed projects, may be found in Appendix 3.

New Projects

The Legal Enforcement of Contracts and Loan Agreements: The Role of Cultural Values in Theories of Consent and Vitiatio

This project is led by Puja Kapai and funded by the Research Grants Council (RGC)'s General Research Fund.

Towards the Development of a Human Rights Impact Assessment for Social Welfare Policies in Hong Kong

Karen Kong was awarded this HKU Small Project Funding grant in June 2013.

Legally Unrepresented Persons in the Civil Courts in Hong Kong

This is a new project led by Antonio Da Roza funded by the HKU Seed Funding Programme for Basic Research.

The Implementation of International Refugee Law in Asia

This is a new project led by Kelley Loper funded by the HKU Seed Funding Programme for Basic Research.

Judicial Deference in Constitutional Rights Adjudication: Constructing an Approach for Post-Handover Hong Kong

CCPL Fellow Cora Chan leads this project, funded by the Research Grants Council (RGC)'s General Research Fund.

Proportionality, Intensity of Review and the Integrity of Proportionality

CCPL Fellow Cora Chan was awarded this Small Project Funding grant in June 2012.

Constitutional Reform and Democratization in Hong Kong

CCPL Fellow Albert Chen was awarded this Small Project Funding grant in January 2011.

Revisiting the Religious Free Market: Comparative Analysis of East Asian Societies

CCPL Fellow Chen Jianlin is the primary investigator on this project, which was awarded Seed Funding under the Programme for Basic Research in December 2011.

International Best Practices on Children's Rights Education: A Comparative Research Study of Hong Kong, the United Kingdom, Norway and Australia

This project led by Puja Kapai and is funded by the Small Project Fund.

Gallant Ho Experiential Learning Award

Professor Simon Young was awarded funding from the Gallant Ho Experiential Learning Fund in January 2013 to support and enhance CCPL's Clinical Legal Education Programme.

ONC Law Reform Project

At the initiative and sponsorship of ONC Lawyers, CCPL and ONC Lawyers are collaborating to organise a series of conferences on law reform in Hong Kong. The project is led by Simon Young and Professor Michael Tilbury working in conjunction with ONC Lawyers' Ludwig Ng. The conference was held on September 17, 2011; eminent international experts on law reform presented papers that reflected on possible ways for Hong Kong to take its law reform process forward. HKU Press has agreed to publish the edited collection from this event. The book, entitled Reforming Law Reform: Perspectives on Law Reform Processes in Hong Kong and Beyond, is expected to be published around the end of 2013.

Design Democracy Project

CCPL has been awarded funding from the National Democratic Institute (NDI) to design and implement an online Models of Universal Suffrage portal where the general public can discuss and provide feedback and ideas on which method of universal suffrage is most suitable for Hong Kong. The project is currently staffed by a full-time Research Assistant, two part-time Student Research Assistants and a summer intern.

Ongoing Projects

Cleaved International Law: Complementarity and Conflict between Branches of International Law

CCPL Fellow James Fry is the principle investigator on this project, which is funded by the General Research Fund.

Faculty KE Award 2013

Professor and former CCPL Director Simon Young was awarded the Faculty KE Award for the year 2013 for his project the Human Rights Portal.

CAT Research Projects

These projects are led by Simon Young with the assistance of Kelley Loper and Sharron Fast. They involve the preparation of an operational manual and database of resources to assist those who advise and handle the screening of torture claims in Hong Kong. The senior and student researchers that have assisted with the project include Che Singh, Gabrielle Curtis, Katherine Chan, Lily Chan, Ben Chan, Giselle Yuen, Robert Chan, Steven Lee and Crystal Lai. The project is funded by the Department of Justice.

Projects Completed in 2011-2013

CCPL completed several contract research projects including the ICAC project, the project on comparative anti-stalking laws commissioned by the Constitutional and Mainland Affairs Bureau, and the consultancy report for the Water Supplies Department. Other projects completed included the following.

Civil Society Development in China: The Pivotal Role of Public Interest Lawyering

In this research project, principal investigator Fu Hualing and co-investigator Richard Cullen documented the development of public interest lawyering in China. The project also provided a comprehensive review of the way in which reform of the judicial and practicing arms of the legal profession are interacting, to enhance understanding of the way in which legal transformation, in general, and the development of public interest lawyering in particular are each significantly reshaping civil society in China.

Democracy, Human Rights and Civil Society Sub-Theme

Simon Young was the co-convener of this HKU Strategic Research sub-theme with Professor Joseph Chan. This project examined how Hong Kong should develop in the next 10-20 years to reach standards in democracy, human rights and civil society seen in leading world cities. While project funding ended in October 2010, the project will continue indefinitely.

Diversity Studies

Despite Hong Kong's status as an aspiring "world city", there has been minimal study of the nature and impact of diversity on the SAR's development. Given the extensive immigrant population in Hong Kong and growing social and economic disparities there is a need for more targeted efforts to tackle the complex dynamics that result from an intermingling of diversities. This study, led by Puja Kapai and Kelley Loper, conducted research supported within the broader framework of a diversity theme that would have important practical applications for legal, policy, economic, social, and cultural reform in Hong Kong. Examples of completed and ongoing research relating to diversity conducted within other faculties include projects on: (1) minority languages in China; (2) minority education; (3) gender identity development and transgender; (4) disability and education; (5) poverty and social exclusion of communities; (6) digital inclusiveness in Hong Kong; and (7) integration of new immigrants in Hong Kong. This project was funded by a Hong Kong University Emerging Strategic Research Theme grant.

Enhancing Legal and Policy Measures to Combat Domestic Violence Against Immigrant and Ethnic Minority Women in the HKSAR

This study, led by Puja Kapai proposed to interview and work closely with immigrant and ethnic minority women who have experienced domestic violence in Hong Kong with a view to determining the actions they took (if any), their perceptions of the services received (if any), the obstacles (if any) they faced in doing so, positive and negative outcomes of their help-seeking behaviour and their views on how effectiveness could be improved to address their immediate needs. It is hoped that this information will serve to highlight the critical gap between the laws, policies and social support and services that are available to help victims of domestic violence generally and the actual needs of this neglected group. This information will help confirm the existence of a severe service gap which is potentially a grave human rights violation of the rights of all these women who fail to elicit adequate responses from the domestic violence laws and services in HK. The information obtained through the study will be used to inform and improve awareness of practitioners in the field (legal, social services, law enforcement, health) by providing training on culturally-sensitive responses to immigrant and ethnic minority women. Moreover, the findings of the study will be written up into a report and widely disseminated to relevant government departments and the HK Legislative Council to deliberate on and attend with urgency to the findings and implications of the study so that the HK government can address the gaps by putting effective policies and directives into place.

In Search for a Principled Approach to Judicial Deference: Constitutional Rights Review Local and Abroad

The objective of the first part of this project, led by Cora Chan, was to outline a set of workable principles to guide court's decision regarding when and to what extent to defer (the language of deference is to be preferred over the language of non-justiciability). The focus was on devising an approach to deference in constitutional rights review. Some of the principles of deference suggested to be applicable in the constitutional rights review context were applicable generally to judicial review in other areas of law as well, but some principles were unique to the context of constitutional rights review. The second part of the project analysed the approach to deference that Hong Kong courts have taken since the introduction of constitutional rights review by the Bill of Rights Ordinance (1991-2010), and applied the findings of the first part to the context of Hong Kong, assessing what the variables of the principles turn out to be in Hong Kong, thus suggesting an approach to judicial deference that is tailored to suit the unique constitutional and political circumstances of the jurisdiction.

Legal Assistance for Asylum Seekers and Torture Claimants in Hong Kong

The principal investigator of this project was CCPL Deputy Director Kelley Loper, with Director Simon Young acting as co-investigator. The research project aimed to identify and examine relevant legal assistance schemes in other international common law jurisdictions of comparable economic development. It determined gaps in Hong Kong law and policy and then assessed whether any elements of the comparative models investigated in this study are appropriate for adoption in the Hong Kong context. The models were measured by their ability to protect the rights of claimants, including the right to non-refoulement (non-return to torture or persecution), and to ensure fair and efficient procedures. The project was funded by a Public Policy Research grant from the Research Grants Council.

The Identity Curia: Legal Requirements for an Adequately Reflexive Identity Layer

This project aimed to identify and understand the legally necessary and desirable features of a distributed technological platform for collaborative decision making on personal attributes of living persons (The Identity Curia). It comprised a mapping out of the legal constraints for the development of a platform as such vis-à-vis current and potential socio-technical arrangements of an identity layer for the Internet; and the advancement of basic interdisciplinary contributions as to how a human-machine interface for a system as such could be developed in accordance with the legal constraints mapped out. The project was led by Marcelo Thompson.

Reclaiming the Fair Use Privilege as Users' Collective Rights

The project shed new light on the nature of the fair use doctrine and its role in protecting the public interest in the flow of knowledge and information. It repudiated the conventional wisdom that sees the nature of the fair use doctrine as merely providing every user of copyrighted works with an individual right. The project then illustrated how and why the fair use privilege should be reconceptualised as users' collective rights. Haochen Sun is the principal investigator of the project.

Hong Kong's Court of Final Appeal

The principal investigator of this research project was Simon Young and the co-investigator Yash Ghai. The research was funded by the Research Grants Council of Hong Kong. The project aimed to review the first decade of the Court of Final Appeal (CFA) in a comprehensive and systematic manner. Researchers collected quantitative data on the operation of the CFA and its decided cases comparing this with similar data in respect of the last decade of appeals to the Privy Council. Comparative analysis was done with the Macao Court of Final Appeal since its creation in 1999. From the quantitative data, comparative analysis, and a close examination of all of the CFA judgments, the goal of the project was to gain original and substantial knowledge of how the CFA has developed the law in Hong Kong since 1997. The investigators held a two-day conference in March 2010 to present their findings, which was attended by numerous members of the Hong Kong Judiciary, including the former Chief Justice, Andrew Li. Papers submitted at the conference formed the subject of a draft book proposal later approved by Cambridge University Press. The book will be published in the fall of 2013. In addition, Hong Kong Lawyer magazine in its August 2010 special tribute issue to Chief Justice Li on his retirement published some preliminary results from the project.

Suspended Sentences and Excepted Offences Project

CCPL completed a comparative sentencing law project focused on exceptions to the suspended sentence power under Hong Kong's Criminal Procedure Ordinance in September 2012. The research considered arguments for maintaining, abolishing or reforming the list of excepted offences for which offenders cannot receive a suspended sentence of imprisonment regardless of the circumstances. The project was funded by the Law Society of Hong Kong. In June 2013, the Law Reform Commission of Hong Kong (HKLRC) published a consultation paper that expressly agreed with the recommendations in the CCPL report, which was uploaded to the HKLRC website for public access.

Climate Change and the Courts: The Emergence of Climate Change Litigation

The purpose of this project was to investigate the emergence of climate change litigation, and the consequent role that the courts and legal processes play in climate change governance. The principal investigator of the project was Jolene Lin.

Other Projects

International Law in Domestic Courts

Simon Young and Firew Tiba were invited in June 2008 to be Hong Kong reporters for International Law in Domestic Courts Online (ILDC), a project launched by the Amsterdam Center for International Law with Oxford University Press in 2007. CCPL continues to report and summarize Hong Kong cases that address international law issues. The online service is available at: www.oxfordlawreports.com.

Publications

Occasional Papers

The Centre published five Occasional Papers between 2011–2013. Former Visiting Fellows Aung Htoo's contribution to the series, Seeking Judicial Power, With a Special Focus on Burma's Judiciary was published in October 2011. In November 2011, former Visiting Fellow Helen Liu published Confiscation in Taiwan: The Laws and Ideas for Reform. Charles Banner, who visited the Centre to deliver a seminar on the same topic, contributed Judicial Appointments in the Senior Courts – A Perspective from the United Kingdom. Lastly, current Visiting Fellow Bryane Michael has published two Occasional Papers, the first, in February 2013, Can the Hong Kong ICAC Help Reduce Corruption on the Mainland and the second and most recent, in June 2013, entitled How to Implement Public Sector Codes of Conduct: Lessons from OECD Member States.

CCPL Rights Bulletin

The CCPL Rights Bulletin was launched in January 2010, and received immediate positive feedback from recipients. The Bulletin seeks to disseminate information on recent human rights decisions which will be of use to Hong Kong courts and practitioners. Subject materials include Hong Kong cases, cases in relevant common law jurisdictions where international human rights law in the domestic/municipal context forms the subject matter and the decisions of international human rights treaty bodies that monitor implementation and interpret content of treaty provisions. It is managed by CCPL Assistant Research Officer Sharron Fast. The next issue of the Bulletin will be published in August 2013.

Asia-Pacific Journal on Human Rights and the Law

The Asia-Pacific Journal on Human Rights and the Law is an international law journal published by Brill for more than a decade. In 2013, Professors Simon Young and Kelley Loper will take over the editorship of the journal, which will be housed in CCPL. This will be the second international law journal (next to the Hong Kong Law Journal) managed and published out of the HKU Faculty of Law.

Media Advisories on Edward Snowden

In response to the enormous media enquiries arising from Edward Snowden's two weeks of public life in Hong Kong at the beginning of June 2013, CCPL prepared and published three media advisories answering a range of questions relating to extradition/surrender law, asylum law, privacy and security laws, and other topics. The media advisories were circulated around the world and quoted in thousands of news stories.

Publications of Members and Projects

A number of publications and outputs have resulted from the projects housed in CCPL. Appendix 1 to this report lists these and other projects of Faculty members in the fields of comparative and public law.

LLM in Human Rights

CCPL continues to work closely with the Faculty of Law's LLM in Human Rights Programme. The Human Rights students are encouraged to participate in CCPL events and many regularly attend CCPL conferences and public lectures. The Rights Talks, which are especially targeted at the human rights students, provide informal opportunities to discuss current human rights issues and to meet individuals who practice in the field. The human rights students and alumni are encouraged to deliver a Rights Talk on their research or previous work in the field. CCPL also produces and regularly updates the guide: International Human Rights Research: Selected Sources, by Robyn Emerton and Andrew Byrnes which provides a key resource for the Seminar on Human Rights Research, Sources and Methodology, a course in the LLM Human Rights programme. It is also widely used by academics and activists conducting research in this field.

Media Presence and Website

Scholars associated with the Centre were widely cited in local and regional media outlets in the 2011-13 period. Coverage of the launch of the Human Rights Portal and media inquiries concerning the Edward Snowden Affair in particular were extensive. (A basic Google search of the terms 'Snowden' and 'Simon Young' generated 93,000 hits.) This coverage continues to raise the international profile of the Centre. Mention of CCPL in relation to the launch of the Human Rights Portal can be found in the following English sources:

- ✦ Voice of America, 16 October 2012

Meanwhile, among the higher profile News Agencies which cited former CCPL Director Simon Young's press release on Snowden, were the following: The Guardian, The New York Times, The Financial Times, The Wall Street Journal and Reuters.

Future Developments: 2013-2014

Associate Professor Puja Kapai will lead the Centre as its new Director in 2013. In the coming months, CCPL will also welcome numerous international scholars as Visiting Fellows. Their role during their time at the Centre is to further their individual research projects, interact with the local academic community and give public talks on their findings.

Visiting Fellows programme

The Centre's current visitors are Bryane Michael and Simon Hoey Lee.

Dr. Bryane Michael is currently a Fellow with the University of Hong Kong Faculty of Law's Centre for Comparative and Public Law and the Asian Institute of International Financial Law. As a jurist, he specialises in the design of legislation, regulation and contracts using tools from law, economics, management theory and public administration. His professional background includes 5 years with the World Bank and OECD and over a decade of work with the EU and UN advising governments of Turkey, Russia, Ukraine, Bulgaria and others. His private sector background includes advising a top 3 Wall Street investment house and seats on the Boards of several UK and Hong Kong organisations. His academic background includes teaching at Oxford and recently Columbia. He has taught over 8,000 senior executives and over 500 undergraduate and graduate students using one-to-one Oxford-style Socratic tutorials and Harvard-style case study methods. He has done his graduate work at Harvard and Oxford, and holds certificates from Harvard Business School, the London School of Economics, a Series 7 (stockbrokers license), Series 66 (investment advisor's license), a US insurance license (TX) and a Certified Internal Auditor qualification. He speaks English, Spanish, French, Russian, Turkish and about 500 characters of Chinese.

Dr. Simon Hoey Lee is the Director of Hong Kong & Macao Centre for Strategic Research Institute at China Resources Ltd. His research interests include Hong Kong Basic Law, Chinese legal system and constitutional law. Dr. Lee is a consultant to the Harvard Law School (Program on International Financial Systems). He has also served as the Deputy Governor in the Xifeng County of GuiZhou Province with his legal expertise in 2009-2012. His recent publications include "A Study on the Hong Kong Basic Law Drafting Materials", and "Hong Kong Basic Law: Case Studies" (in Chinese) published by the Joint Publisher in 2012. During his fellowship at the Centre, he intends to further his research on the Hong Kong Basic Law.

Phil C.W. Chan graduated from HKU with the Rowdget W. Young Medal in Law in 2002 and from Durham with an LLM in 2004. He served as Researcher in the Hong Kong office of Baker Botts in 2005 and in visiting research positions in law, international relations and Asian studies at Cambridge, Keele, St Andrews, ANU, Toronto, Ottawa, Freiburg and Vanderbilt during 2006–2008, and as Visiting Research Fellow at Otago and Lecturer in Law at Waikato during 2010–2011. During his visit at the Centre between April and July 2013, in addition to developing his PhD thesis (National University of Singapore) on the symbiotic relationship between China’s exercise of sovereignty and the international legal order for publication as a monograph, he will undertake research on how immigration law has historically been used to discriminate against Chinese immigrants, and on the implications of British National (Overseas) status in international and municipal law. He will also give a seminar based on his thesis.

In the coming months, the Centre for Comparative and Public Law will welcome numerous international scholars as Visiting Fellows. Research conducted by Visiting Fellows represents a range of areas in the fields of public and comparative law, including international law, constitutional law, human rights law, comparative private law, Chinese law, and equality law. Their role during their time at the Centre is to further their individual research projects, interact with the local academic community and give public talks on their findings. Future visitors include: Professor Norbert Varga, who will host a seminar on the constitutional construction of the Austrian-Hungarian monarchy; Professor Lingling Ye of Kumamoto University of Japan, who will further her research in the actual practices of the ‘One Country, Two Systems’ policy; and Attorney Z. Zac Liu of Liu & Associates PLLC who will spend his time at the Centre furthering progress on his upcoming book China’s Pursuit of the Rule of Law.

Final Word

After six years at the helm, I have stepped down from the CCPL Directorship at the beginning of July 2013. I have enjoyed immensely the chance to work with so many people and organizations, both locally and internationally, in furthering the Centre's aims. While CCPL has grown considerably in its activities and significance, the size of the core staff has remained relatively the same. I take this opportunity to thank my deputy directors, Puja Kapai, Kelley Loper and Benny Tai, for all their contributions. I am extremely grateful for the hard work and dedication of our Centre secretary, Flora Leung, research officer, Sharron Fast, and research assistant, Winnie Chan. I especially thank the Dean of Law and the two Heads of department for their support and good suggestions.

I congratulate Puja Kapai on her appointment as the new CCPL Director. Puja obtained her LLB at HKU with honours, her LLM from Harvard Law School and practiced as a barrister at Temple Chambers before joining us as an Assistant Professor in 2006. She was appointed Associate Professor in 2012 and is an Executive Committee member of Unison Hong Kong. She specializes in the areas of human rights and multiculturalism. I have full confidence that she will continue CCPL's tradition of excellence in conducting and promoting comparative law research and will do a superb job in leading the Centre to reach new heights.

I will remain actively involved in CCPL activities including the Refugee Clinical Legal Education Programme, the Asia-Pacific Journal on Human Rights and the Law, the Human Rights Portal, the Design Democracy project, other existing contract law research projects, and various rule of law related initiatives.
